He Never Reached "Amen."

A saintly individual who tried to offer up a prayer at the meeting of his creditors in Queen Victoria street, New York, not long ago, did not get as far as "Amen" on that occasion. Among his creditors was a rough Scotchman, who, as soon as he got over the amazement at the coolness of the proceedings, shouted out: "Sit down, ye dommed infernal heepooreet. If ye say anither wurd to the Almighty in my presence dom me if I dinna kick ye." The creditors roared, the petitioner sat down, and the business of the meeting proceeded in the manner usual on such occasions.—Pittsburg Commercial Gazette.

Praying for Reporters.

The Times' St. Paul special says: In the Senate yesterday the Chaplain startled that august body by closing his prayer with a word for the newspaper men. He said: "And now, dear Lord, bless the reporters, whose nimble pens scratch out every word almost before it is uttered. Like Thysself they are omnipresent, and almost omnipotent. If we take the wings of the morning and fly to the uttermost parts of the earth they are there. They meet us in the jungles of Africa, they waylay us in the solitary canons of Colorado, and when, at length, we find the latitude of the magnetic pole, behold, they are there! May their light and goodness be equal to their power, and when the general assembly of heaven convenes, let not the reporters be excluded Amen."

—That judge in Washington City who fined the newsboys $5 each because they congregated together at a newspaper office where they were waiting for their daily issue of papers is just too sensitive to live. He evidently so hates to see people in company that he should be allowed for the remainder of his days to be isolated from the rest of the world, and like Dunderbary's bird he suffered to "flock in a corner all alone by himself." There is no class of the laboring community that earns its living more honestly than the newsboys, and from no humble condition in life have more men of usefulness, honor and high eminence risen; and the judge who would rob these deserving and industrious boys of a week's wages—and in some cases it was more—simply because they did not march in single file at lengthened intervals, is an ignoramus and a tyrant.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26, 1887.

Only five more working days are left for the present Congress, for at noon on the fourth of March its day will end. Considering the great amount of unfinished legislation it is difficult to see how Congress can pass certain indispensable bills in the short time remaining to it. It is palpably apparent that something should be done to increase the length of the American congressional term, or to curtail the length of the American Congressman. His proximity has become proverbial. He fills volumes with his talk, while his deeds may be written on a postal card. There is a movement in Congress to extend the term of the legislative session, but it is probable that it will be submerged in talk and there will be no action taken this session. Much of the time of Members of Congress is still taken up in attention to the private claims of their constituents. A large part of the voters of the country seems to look upon their representatives in Congress as their special attorney to get them places under Government employ, to prosecute their claims for pensions, patents and Government contracts, and to supply them with libraries and even with money. There is scarcely a Member or Senator who is not subjected to requests for services and alms from his constituents.

Senator Stewart, of Nevada, is here, conspicuous and active, making tireless efforts to secure an appropriation for the Carson Mint. The appropriation for the Mint was left out of the original appropriation bill, and it is generally conceded that with the present attitude of the Administration he stands very little show. At the same time, his wonderful aptitude in combining for anything he wants is generally conceded, and everybody here is interested to know what levers he will touch to win his fight against such decided odds. Should he succeed, it will give him a standing and prestige never before enjoyed by a Pacific Coast representative.

Congress will adjourn on the 4th of March but many Representatives and Senators will remain until June. Many of them have homes here while others have private business or are engaged in committee work.

The National Competitive Drill, which will continue for a week beginning on the twentieth of May, will no doubt be a splendid military pageant and will doubtless attract many visitors to Washington. Military companies from all parts of the Union that have been drilling for this occasion will then compete for prizes aggregating $50,000. The infantry, cavalry and artillery branches of the service will be represented, and the perfectly level meadow between the White House and the Washington Monument will be used as a parade ground. The amendment to change Inauguration day to the thirtieth of April was referred to the Judiciary Committee of the House on the twenty-second of June, which came very near being the longest day of the year. Inasmuch as the amendment was neither Republican, nor Democratic, nor Northern, nor Southern, nor sectional, nor political, but simply one which would promote the comfort and convenience of every class and condition of American citizen, North and South, East and West, and one which had received unprecedented approval from the public generally, it was the plain duty of the judiciary to act and to act promptly. The amendment had been carefully considered and revised by the Senate it is only half a dozen lines in length, and should have been passed by the House in June, or most certainly early in December. If the people of the United States do not want it, their State Legislatures will not ratify it; but if the people of the United States do want it they may well feel indignant if the measure be defeated by the inaction of a few listless members of the House of Representatives.

—In another column is printed a letter from our regular Washington correspondent who speaks of Senator Stewart's hard work to secure an appropriation for the Carson Mint. The correspondent seems to think that Stewart will not make the rifle. Since the letter was mailed from Washington, however, Stewart took the trick. What now have the anti-Stewart men of last Fall got to say?

—A Gentleman who has talked with the President about the Interstate Commerce Commission quotes him as saying: "I want men on the Board who are as sound physically as they are mentally. I want, in other words, men who can make, if necessary, a hurried trip to California, solve the intricacies of some problem there, return in the same way to Washington, stopping a few days at Chicago, doing more work there, and yet not feel the fatigue of the trip. There will be a great deal of travelling and a great deal of hard work. It will be no sine-cure. Whoever takes a place on the Board will earn every dollar of his money."

How it was Discovered.

A Carson Mint employe has discovered that drill points heated to a cherry red and tempered through being driven into a bar of lead will bore through the hardest steel or plate-glass without perceptibly blunting.—Ex.

The above item first appeared in the Scientific American and is going the rounds of the press. Mr. George McLoughlin who was at the time pressman of the Mint was the one who made the discovery, in the following manner:

One day he was tempering a drill and finding that the point was not satisfactory threw it in disgust at a cold bar of lead so that the drill stuck in the bar. He then proceeded to make another, and afterwards it occurred to him that the cooling caused by the lead would be apt to be more even than by any other process. He took the drill out and found it so well tempered that he could bore through plate glass with it.

Thoma not Boyle.

The statement made by the News-Reporter that Senator Boyle introduced a bill aimed at reducing official advertising rates is incorrect. Senator Thoma of Eureka introduced the bill it is supposed at the suggestion of Controller Hallock. This statement is made as a matter of justice to Mr. Boyle who is a man of broad and liberal ideas, and does not wish to be placed on record as trying to hamper the press.

INJUSTICE CORRECTED.

Convincing Verification of Widespread Public Statements.

TO OUR READERS:—In common with many publishers and editors, we have been accustomed to look upon certain statements which we have seen in our columns as merely adroit advertising.

Consequently we feel justified in taking the liberty of printing a few points from a private letter recently received from one of our largest patrons, as a sort of confession of faith to our readers. We quote:

"We have convinced ourselves that by telling what we know to be true, we have produced at last a permanent conviction in the public mind. Seven years ago we stated what the national disease of this country was, and that it was rapidly increasing. Three years ago we stated that a marked check had been given it. The statistics of one of the largest life insurance companies of this country shows that in 1833 and 1834, the mortality from kidney disorders did not increase over the previous years; other companies stated the same thing. It is not presumptuous for us to claim credit for checking these ravages.

"Seven years ago we stated that the condition of the kidneys was the key to the condition of health; within the past five years all careful life insurance companies have conceded the truth of this statement, for, whereas, ten years ago, chemical analysis to determine the condition of the kidneys was not required, to-day millions of dollars in risks are refused, because chemical examination discovers unsuspected diseases of the kidneys.

"Seven years ago we stated that the ravages of Bright's Disease were insignificant compared with other unsuspected disorders of the kidneys of many misleading names; that ninety-three per cent. of human ailments are attributable to deranged kidneys, which fills the blood with uric acid, or kidney poison, which causes these many fatal diseases.

"The uric acid, or kidney poison, is the real cause of the majority of cases of paralysis, apoplexy, heart disease, convulsions, pneumonia, consumption, and insanity; over half the victims of consumption are first the victims of diseased kidneys.

"When the recent death of an honored ex-official of the United States was announced, his physician said that although he was suffering from Bright's Disease, that was not the cause of death. He was not frank enough to admit that the apoplexy which overtook him in his bed, was the fatal effect of the kidney poison in the blood, which had eaten away the substance of the arteries and brain; nor was Logan's physician honest enough to state that his fatal rheumatism was caused by kidney acid in the blood.

"If the doctors would state in official reports the original cause of death, the people of this country would be alarmed, yes, nearly panic stricken, at the fearful mortality from kidney disorders."

The writers of the above letter give these facts to the public simply to justify the claims that they have made, that "if the kidneys and liver are kept in a healthy condition by the use of Warner's safe cure, which hundreds of thousands have proved to be a specific, when all other remedies failed, and that has received the endorsement of the highest medical talent in Europe, Australasia and America, many a life would be prolonged and the happiness of the people preserved. It is successful with so many different diseases because it, and it alone, can remove the uric acid from the blood through the kidneys."

Our readers are familiar with the preparation named.

Commendation thereof has often appeared in our columns.

We believe it to be one of the best, if not the best, ever manufactured.

We know the proprietors are men of character and influence.

We are certain they have awakened a widespread interest in the public mind concerning the importance of the kidneys. We believe with them that they are the key to health, and that for their restoration from disease and maintenance in health there is nothing equal to this great remedy.

The proprietors say they "do not glory in this universal prevalence of disease, but having started out with the purpose of spreading the merits of Warner's safe cure before the world, because it cured our senior proprietor, who was given up by doctors as incurable, we feel it our duty to state the facts and leave the public to its own inferences. We point to our claims, and to their public and universal verification with pride, and if the public does not believe what we say, we tell them to ask their friends and neighbors what they think about our preparations."

As stated above, we most cordially commend the perusal of this correspondence by our readers, believing that in so doing we are fulfilling a simple public obligation.

Speaker McDonnell.

Archie McDonnell, speaker of the House for the session just past, made a splendid presiding officer. No matter what his views were on any particular bill its friends could always be sure of an impartial ruling. When he was at all in doubt as regards technicalities of parliamentary rule he always brought justice and sound judgment to bear upon the question and if in error was always ready to recede the moment the point was shown. Never dictatorial or arrogant he won the regard and respect of all of his associates.

—Governor Stevenson is still wrestling with the constitutionality of the Lottery bill. He does not object to the bill, and wants to be certain he is right before acting.
